Health director quits

Conway says Hurley's resignation 'good for Anderson County'

By Ben Carlson

Embattled health director Brandon Hurley has quit, health board Chairman Harold Todd confirmed Monday morning. Hurley's last day is today (Wednesday), and the Anderson County Board of Health is expected to name an interim replacement when it meets tonight at 6 p.m. at the health department. The health board is also expected finalize a state-approved plan to terminate at least one employee, move other employees from full- to part-time, and announce a series of furlough days. Those cuts are designed to eliminate an estimated $187,000 annual operating deficit. Hurley resigned his position last Tuesday afternoon, Todd said. Hurley has accepted a job within the state's cabinet for Health and Family Services, sources within the health department said. Hurley's resignation comes on the heels of him being placed on See HURLEY, Page A2

Former cop may still be charged

Attorney says investigation open

By Ben Carlson
General Manager

The off duty Lawrenceburg police officer who reportedly was intoxicated and mislead police following an accident earlier this month in Franklin County might be charged after all.

Franklin County Attorney Rick Sparks issued a statement Friday, saying that the investigation into the accident remains open.

"The Franklin County Attorney's office is continuing to review the case to determine what, if any, charges should be filed," Sparks said in a statement to The Anderson News.

Kyle Lucas resigned as a police officer last Tuesday, four days after being involved in an accident in the early morning hours of Feb. 10.

As of last Tuesday, it didn't appear that Lucas would face any criminal charges, despite failing a sobriety test administered by a fellow Lawrenceburg officer at the scene, and comments from another Lawrenceburg officer that Lucas gave misleading statements to Franklin County sheriff's deputies at the scene of the accident.

On that day, Franklin County Sheriff Pat Melton told The Anderson News that his office had met with Sparks' office and that Lucas wouldn't be charged because "there isn't enough to prosecute him on," Melton said. Sparks called that "an

School nurse cuts considered

Health chair wants district to pony up more for service

Harold Todd, health board chairman, requested $9,360 from the board of education at its special-called meeting Feb. 9 to allow school nurses to retain their full-time status and benefits.

Todd cited the current financial woes of the health board, and its attempt to "right the ship" in combating the department's $187,000 deficit.

"As most of you know, especially from reading the paper, we've had extreme financial difficulties," Todd said, addressing the board members.

According to reports from The Anderson News, the health board recently approved about $190,000 in services and payroll cuts for its staff, with a final decision on cuts to be made tonight (Wednesday).

"It's not just the new building," Todd said. "That's about half the problem."

The health department employees the five full-time nurses who work in the schools, with one nurse sharing part-time services at the Early Childhood Center.

Todd said it costs the health department about $79,000 to keep the school nurses employed at 35-hour working weeks with full benefits.

The school board reimbursed the health board $112,000 through its annual contract with the health department. Superintendent Sheila Mitchell said the funds used to pay for the contract with the school nurses comes from the board's general fund.

The health department also receives about a 30 percent match in revenue, Todd said, when it bills those students covered by Medicaid

HONORING THOSE WHO SERVED

Wayne Darnell, a Vietnam veteran, places American flags on every grave in Fairview cemetery. He's done so for about 20 years.

It's important to him to remember those who have served their country, like his father did in World War II, and as his great great-grandfather did before him in the Civil War.

"I've been interested since I've been this tall," Darnell, holding his hand at knee-length, said.

Darnell eventually found where his great great-grandfather was buried, in an unmarked grave in Richmond National cemetery in Virginia.

He knew he had another ancestor, Civil War veteran Peter Waldrige Jr., buried at his home church's cemetery, Fairview Christian.

Playground 'required' at new ECC building

PTO working to raise $60,000 for equipment, tens of thousands more for crumb rubber

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

The Parent Teacher Organization of the Early Childhood Center isn't playing around when it comes to raising more than $60,000 by next school year for required playground equipment at the new childhood center.

"It's at least been on our radar screen; we knew even then that it would be unlikely that the money was going to be appropriated for the playground," Belinda Hardin, PTO president, said of the needed funding for the ECC playgrounds. "Even before they were breaking ground on building the new building, we were fundraising."

Before opening its doors this fall, the Ezra B.

Sparrow early childhood center will be required, by the Kentucky Department of Education under 702 KAR 4:170, to offer two separate playgrounds, one for preschool and another for kindergarten students.

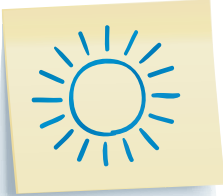

About 75 percent of the existing preschool playground meets state requirements and can be relocated to the new center location, Early Childhood Center principal Melissa Lentz said, but the current kindergarten playground does not meet guidelines set by the state for new school construction.

"Kindergarten is different. They are in need of some updated equipment that meets certifications and guidelines," Lentz unfortunate choice of words,” adding that at the time of Melton’s statement, his office had yet to be given information it needs to make a decision.

“The decision will be based on the initial evidence, as well as facts and information not previously presented. This will include a full review of the evidence gathered from all parties involved,” Sparks said in a statement.

Lucas, who in 2011 made the county’s most DUI arrests, was reportedly a passenger in a minivan being driven by a 19-year-old woman when the van hit guard-rail on US 127 and landed on its side around in Franklin County.

According to a report released by the Franklin County Sheriff’s Office, Lucas first told deputies that he didn’t know who was driving the vehicle, then later gave them the woman’s wrong name.

Witnesses at the scene said they heard Lucas telling the woman to “run,” which he denied.

Once police arrived, they said they found Lucas behind a fence on private property, and were unable to locate the woman.

The woman, Courtney Chesser, was found around 4 a.m. in Lawrenceburg by the Lawrenceburg Police Department. She told officers that she was the one driving the van, and that Lucas was performing a sexual act on her, which caused her to take her eyes off the road and crash.

Chesser was charged with leaving the scene of the accident.

Television station WLEX 18 in Lexington showed video of the accident later that morning, including Lucas standing along side the road. The footage also showed another Lawrenceburg police officer, Sgt. Les Vogt, administering what appeared to be an alcohol breath test at the scene, despite being outside of the department’s jurisdiction.

Last Tuesday, Lt. Chris Atkins of the Lawrenceburg Police Department said he and Vogt were contacted by the Franklin County Sheriff’s Office and administered the breath test as part of an internal investigation.

Lawrenceburg Mayor Edwinna Baker said last Tuesday she offered Lucas a chance to resign and when he did, the city’s internal investigation into the incident stopped.

Atkins said Lucas was offered a chance to resign for what occurred that night despite not being criminally charged.

“The intoxication and wreck played a small part in it,” said Atkins. “There’s nothing against the law about being in a vehicle intoxicated.

“It was his dishonesty at the scene with deputies from Franklin County and telling [Chesser] to run.”

Asked why he thinks Lucas was not charged with giving false statements to police or alcohol intoxication in a public place, Aktins said, “I can’t answer that.”

Atkins added that Chesser’s claim of a sexual encounter leading up to the accident “didn’t weigh into the decision” to accept his resignation.

probation and having his hours cut to 100 per month for a variety of reasons, not the least of which was his inability to solve the health department’s worsening financial situation.

Todd said Hurley offered a letter of resignation, a portion of which Todd will read during tonight’s health board meeting.

“He thanked the board and the community for the time he spent here,” said Todd. “He didn’t sound bitter at all. It was very nice and well written.

“He didn’t state any reasons for leaving, just that he is moving on.”

Hurley was targeted directly by Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway, a member of the health board who last year openly called for him to be fired for financial and community-relations problems.

On Monday, Conway said he’s glad Hurley is gone.

“I think this is a good thing for Anderson County,” Conway said. “I think now we can move forward and bring respect back to the Anderson County Health Department and create a better working environment for the citizens of this county, as well for the health department’s employees.”

Todd said current health department employees have already expressed interest in the interim position, and that he expects that one of them will be appointed.

The health board will likely discuss those candidates in closed session tonight, then make a final decision in public.

Todd said he expects the health board will then create a hiring committee and begin advertising to fill the position. He said state health officials in Frankfort would screen applicants to ensure they are qualified, and return the names of those who are.

“I would think the board would appoint a hiring committee,” Todd said, “and recommend a name to the full board.”

Although Hurley leaves with a part-time job, Todd said it hasn’t been decided if the interim director will also be part-time.

“That person doesn’t have to be,” Todd said. “We can decide that.”

said. Due to the nature of the Qualified School Construction Bonds grant used to construct the new childhood center, Superintendent Sheila Mitchell said, there was not enough money to build the desired 14 classrooms, let alone fund playground equipment. “We knew going in that we were only going to have so much bonding capacity for that facility,” Mitchell said, “and it’s very unfortunate that we were unable to have four additional classroom, and once we bonded everything out, the playground was not included in the plan. We would have liked for it to have been, but it was not included.” Layout and funding plans for playgrounds, though a requirement for the ECC building, Mitchell said, are not usually included in the initial bond proposal for most new construction projects. For the last two years, it’s been the No.1 fundraising priority for the ECC’s parent teacher organization, Hardin said. “We may see it as a playground, but to be quite honest, it’s an exercise facility for young kids,” Hardin said. Saralyn Kingsolver, a kindergarten and special education instructor at the ECC, agreed. “It’s also therapy,” she said, speaking of those preschool students with developmental delays. “A lot of our occupational, physical therapists use the playground as parts of their therapy. You can’t quite do those same things in a classroom.” Through hosting several fundraisers such as collecting “Box Tops,” the annual fall “Art to Remember” and the Christmastime “Secret Santa Shop,” the ECC parent teacher organization has raised $13,925 over the last three years toward purchasing the playground equipment. “As a principal, I don’t feel like that’s a mission with our children, I don’t want the parents to feel like all we’re doing is fundraising,” Lentz said. “We try to make the fundraisers that we do meaningful.” The PTO also engaged in a letter-writing campaign in early February, sending more than 250 letters to local businesses to ask for community support for the playgrounds.

“We felt like we now needed to ask the community to get involved and support our fundraising activities,” Hardin said. “I think the community is well aware of the ECC, support it.” Some businesses have already made donations, Hardin and Lentz confirmed. The additional $60,000 does not include funds for playground covering or turf, such as wood mulch or recycled crumb rubber, the latter being what the current ECC uses. Kingsolver helped to write the ECC application for the 2012 Kentucky Waste Crumb Rubber Grant, a 75/25 percent match grant that Kingsolver, Lentz and Hardin hope to receive. “Ideally, we’d like to use crumb rubber,” Kingsolver said. “It’s safer, less maintenance over time, more environmentally friendly.” The Early Childhood Center was awarded the crumb rubber grant once before, back in 2006 for its current kindergarten playground turf. Some of the crumb rubber covering can be moved to the new ECC if necessary, Lentz said. The total estimated cost for crumb rubber surfacing for both playgrounds is $63,000, with the ECC requesting $47,000 from the grant pool of $300,000. If the ECC cannot raise enough funds to purchase the basic playground equipment required by the state, an appeal for funding will be made to either the superintendent or the board of education, depending how much money is still needed. Any requests less than $5,000 needs only the approval of the superintendent, while any request larger than $5,000 must be presented before the board of education for approval. “Ultimately, we may have to come back to the general fund, and the board,” Lentz said. Although in the beginning stages of bids and design planning, Lentz said she feels that the childhood center has the support of the community and of the parents when it comes to fundraising efforts. “We will rally and figure this out and we will have a wonderful playground,” Lentz said. “Ultimately [the playground] is going to be part of the community.”

Bustin, Cornish, Lee, Hoskins, Smallwood owe apology tonight

Five who voted for new health building ultimately to blame for employee cutbacks

We'll hear plenty when the Anderson County Health Board meets tonight (Wednesday) at 6. We'll hear which health department employee has lost his or her job. We'll hear which employees will be reduced to part time. We'll hear how many furlough days employees will be forced to endure. But if history is any indicator, what we won't hear is an apology from those responsible for inflicting this hardship on these employees and their families. Not once since Andrew Bustin, Joy Hoskins, Jeffrey Lee, Jennifer Smallwood or former judge-executive Steve Cornish voted to waste millions of dollars on a building that wasn't needed has one of them stood before the public and apologized. But they should, and should do so tonight in front of the people who are now paying for their decision with their livelihoods. Don't look for that to happen. Of the five, only Bustin and Hoskins remain on the board. Confronted by an angry public time and again since his vote in 2009, Bustin remains steadfast in his decision and flatly refuses to apologize. Hoskins, who along with Lee recommended the new building, rarely speaks during meetings and appears content to simply ignore what the public has had to say. Lee and Smallwood are long gone from the board — the heat apparently way too high to stick around and defend their votes. Then there's Cornish, the former judge-executive who bears the lion's share of the criticism for this decision. Not only did he keep his fiscal court in the dark about the pending vote on the building, he obstinately ignored a previous administration's plans — blueprints already existed — to construct a new health building in the county park. Had he followed through with that plan, the health board wouldn't have had to shell out $125,000 in cash to the owner of the land on which the new building sits, nor would it have had to give the landowner the old health building, valued at the time at $400,000. And if that weren't enough, taxpayers last year spent $275,000 to buy back the old building to house the sheriff's office. That's a whopping $800,000 in transactions that never needed to happen, and perhaps the biggest reason current Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway trounced Cornish in the May 2010 primary. If their defense is that they were merely public servants who volunteered their time and were misled by a power-hungry health director, that's hogwash. Anyone, regardless of pay, who accepts the responsibility to oversee the management of millions of public dollars can't ignore the magnitude of that responsibility, nor can they run for the tall grass when things go bad. In fairness, health board members Mark Tussey and Keith Klink voted against the building, as did former member Delwin Jacoby. Until now the health board has been able to mitigate the damage caused by this decision by using hundreds of thousands of reserve dollars to shore up the health department's growing deficits. Heading into tonight's meeting, the deficit stands at roughly $187,000 a year. Of that total, about $120,000 is used to make mortgage payments on the new building. Yes, that means the department would still be running in the red, but could have been dealt with through better fiscal management, not program and employee cutbacks. Is this criticism particularly harsh? Yes, it is, but is nothing compared to what health department employees will now be forced to endure. While these five people carry on with their profitable private lives, those whose lives have been turned upside down are now paying for a decision that has sent the health department's finances into a tailspin that only staff cuts will solve. And while those responsible sit and stew over a yet another harsh editorial in The Anderson News, the people paying for their mistakes will try to figure out how to go home tonight and explain to their loved ones why their pay, and in some cases their health and retirement benefits, have been slashed. At the very least, those responsible should send them home with an apology that is long overdue, but almost certainly not going to happen.

And while those responsible sit and stew over a yet another harsh editorial in The Anderson News, the people paying for their mistakes will try to figure out how to go home tonight and explain to their loved ones why their pay, and in some cases their health and retirement benefits, have been slashed.

For the love of country life

Last Saturday morning, I spent three hours watching two men trap for beavers off the banks of the Kentucky River. Never thought I'd write that sentence. I also never imagined that I'd eat barbecued squirrel. Or taste the best burgoo. Or finally learn how not to panic while driving on narrow country roads in western Anderson County. I may be a day late in celebrating Valentine's Day, but I figured it's never too late to confess a secret love: my unabashed admiration for country life. Even beaver trapping on a frozen February morning. Being "country," unfortunately, often has a negative association, and gets a bad reputation on television and in film. People often use nicknames like "hick," "redneck" or "hillbilly" to describe behavior and speech that they view as ignorant and backwards. They're the ignorant ones. I've never pretended to be an expert in hunting or fishing or any activity that could be categorized as "country." My first experiences with these things came straight from the pages of "Little House on the Prairie." I proudly share facts of country life I've had to learn the hard way as a gullible city

Daughter thankful for article on mother

To the editor:
Thank you for choosing to write the facts of our precious mother's body being [allegedly] damaged by the staff of Sunset Memorial Gardens. That body belonged to Katherine Galbraith, a woman who had lived through the Depression, World War II, the death of her child and the suicide of her husband. She was much loved by her daughters, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, niece and countless others she adopted along the way of her life. In her 85 years, she taught us to always respect ourselves and others. To treat others as God would, and that loving and caring for another were two of her "rules for life." She performed countless acts of kindness. It gives us a heavy heart that our final act of honoring such a wonderful person ended in physical damage and destruction to her. Her spirit, her joy and unconditional love for all will live on eternally.

Now's the time to start planting tomato seeds

There are only five more Mondays until spring. I have to say that I have loved this winter. I haven't had to walk up the drive even once. Last winter I walked for almost a month. Sure, it got me in shape and offered plenty of beautiful night skies, but slipping and sliding while carrying groceries or dog food, was not my idea of a good time. We should be done with the snow, if the August fog predictor is accurate. The number of foggy mornings predicted the number of snows accurately last year, so I'm hopeful. Besides, it's almost March. It's time to get growing indoors, if you like to start your own seeds. Since we all like to get tomatoes as early as possible, go ahead and start those seeds. You can keep starting them over the next month. Just look at the days to harvest to determine which seeds to start first. You can also start seeds for broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage now. I'll probably wait and get plants, since my indoor grow space is limited to my tomatoes. Though spring is a more difficult time to grow these crops (way more pests than in the fall), I've decided to give it a shot this year. I have grown them in the fall in years past, but my heart wasn't in it. I was too busy with harvesting, canning and preserving summer vegetables to care much about the fall crops. So, this spring I'll plant those crops, but I'll use row covers to reduce the pest problems. Time and energy are big factors when it comes to gardening. I have limited time and occasionally, my personal batteries run down (shocker, huh?). Working smarter, not harder, is my personal mantra, so each year I look for more efficient ways to garden. Container or raised beds save both time and energy. You have fewer weeds and can monitor watering needs better. Companion planting is an additional step because it can boost the crop yield, increase flavors and reduce pests and disease. Growing perennial vegetables and herbs is another smart way to save time and energy. I've had basil growing outside for years and have enough dried stuff in the cabinet to last several more. It makes for great Christmas presents, though. My strawberries are another favorite perennial, though I do some "refreshing" each year by using runners to make new plants. Year after year, all I have to do is a little fertilizing and mulching. I have both June bearing and Ever bearing to make the harvest last longer. Asparagus is another favorite perennial, and last fall I planted lots more. I put in 2-year-old plants so I should get a fair crop this spring. I'm hoping to have some at the stand this year. The secret is in the soil for asparagus especially, but also with most perennial crops. Asparagus likes a neutral pH of 6.7-7.0 to keep fungal disease at bay, along with plenty of sun. Most all crops like well draining soil. Perennial plants just keep on producing, year after year, without all the planting. Take a look at your gardening areas and see if you have some places to put in perennials. You'll be glad you did. Now, get going on those seeds. Find all your gardening stuff and take stock of what you need before spring arrives. Let's go green in Anderson County. We can plant a little in the ground and keep the little we have in the wallet. Happy growing.

Cheryl Steenerson

Column as I see 'em ... I was already in a sour mood when I stopped to fill my gas tank Friday night. I had just reviewed my year-end tax documents and was doing a slow burn over how much money was confiscated from my family so it could be squandered by politicians bottom fishing for votes. My burn grew a little hotter as the meter on the gas pump charged toward $60, so I shut it off and figured a chat with the jovial cashier inside might put me in a better mood before I went home. Instead, I got a first-hand look at my money being wasted by a woman using her food stamps card. No, she didn't use my money to buy to milk or something nutritious for the child she had in tow. Not even close. Instead, she walked up to the cash register and plopped down several pricy Red Bull energy drinks, a couple bottles of Coke and a small mountain of candy bars. I initially paid her no mind until I saw her break out her stars and stripes embossed food stamps card, hand it to the cashier and proceed to allow my money to fuel her tank. Biting my tongue until it nearly bled, I kept my yap shut if for no other reason than to not embarrass the child. But when she stuffed the food stamps card back in her wallet and whipped out cash for lottery tickets, I nearly blew a gasket and had to walk outside. It was either that or end up in jail. After she left, I went back in and asked if such transactions are even legal. "Sure it is," said the cashier. "That happens all the time. People buy snacks and sodas with their EBT card [which is apparently a kinder way of saying welfare card] then buy cigarettes, beer and lottery with cash." He continued on, blithely ignoring the vein standing out in my neck and the real likelihood that I was on the verge of a rage-fueled aneurism. He regaled me with the story of how a 20-something guy and several of his pals came in one day, and quoted the man as follows: "Hey! The old lady [wife or mom, I'm not sure] forgot to take the EBT card. Let's chow down!" They nearly cleaned out the station's deli case of meatball subs, loaded up on the requisite chips and drinks, and laughed all the way out the door. The subs were apparently allowable because they had to be nuked. The cashier kept it up and told me anecdotal stories about people who use EBT cards to buy junk food with the latest and greatest iPhone plastered to their ears.

See CARLSON, Page A5

About people who sell their EBT card for cash to keep them well supplied with beer and smokes.

About people who trade their EBT cards for a bag of dope, and those who refuse to buy items for their children while shoving nuked subs I'm paying for into their faces with one hand, and scratching lottery tickets with the other.

I'm not opposed to the hungry being fed, particularly children, and understand there are those who use this benefit responsibly.

But I am opposed to a system that allows such blatant abuse of my money.

If you receive an EBT card, you're welcome. If you don't abuse it, thanks.

Speaking of abuse, I've calmed down a bit since writing the above, but cannot bring myself to stop considering other wasteful scenarios.

Such as this. Taxpayers provide millions of school children breakfast and lunch each day, either at no cost or at a reduced cost for their parents. (Calling their lunches "free" is a mixture of ignorance among those not bright enough to know that nothing is free, and deceit among those who do.)

For the breakfast and lunch kids, that's 10 of their normal 21 meals each week, or about half.

It's a safe bet that many of those children's parents also receive EBT cards, in some cases loaded with enough of my money to feed themselves and their kids 21 times each week.

But if my money is already feeding their kids 10 times a week during the school year, shouldn't their EBT cards be reduced and provide enough of my money to feed their kids the 11 remaining meals?

Or, perhaps the EBT cards should be used to purchase the school lunch.

Of course it should, but don't expect that to happen. If it did, how would mom and dad afford beer, dope, smokes and snacks?

Lovers Leap Winery changes hands

Business expected to reopen March 1

From staff reports

Lovers Leap Vineyards and Winery came under new management last week.

Former owners Logan and Pam Leet confirmed last Friday morning that they had sold their interest in the winery.

The Leets operated the winery for several years after taking it over from its founders, Jerry and Ann Holder, according to the winery's website.

The names of the winery's new owners were not listed on the website. An answering machine at the winery said it will be closed until March 1.

The Leets expanded the winery's yield during their ownership, capitalizing on its 30 acres of vines to produce thousands of bottles of various award-winning wines that topped competitions in New York, San Francisco and Kentucky.

Last year, Lovers Leap produced a wine that was the official wine of the Kentucky Derby.

The winery is located on Lanes Mill Road on northeast Anderson County.

Lawrenceburg City Council accepts tank bid

By Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

The city council voted unanimously to approve a $1.092 million bid for the new Wild Turkey water storage tank at its Feb. 13 meeting.

The council approved 5-0, with council member Ken Evans absent from the meeting, to accept the lowest bid for the project from Louisville company Caldwell Tanks, Inc., at $1,092,000.

The bid includes construction of the new water storage tank on Wild Turkey property, as well as the removal of the two current water storage tanks on Center Street. The new water tank will increase volume capacity by 300,000 gallons.

The council accepted a $1.353 million economic development association grant to be used toward water storage tank construction at its council meeting back in November.

girl, like:

- A "cattle guard" does not stand watch over his cattle by night.
- Those points on a buck's antlers actually mean something.
- "Skeet shooting" does, indeed, exist. But people will laugh at you if you ask where they keep the "skeet" birds.

For some reason, no one seems too impressed when I break out those gems of knowledge. But I'm always impressed with people who can teach me something new, something unexpected.

Like Amber Becker.

Amber is the 16-year-old daughter of Anderson County resident Danny Becker, and has been beaver trapping with her dad for years.

So spending a Saturday morning on a pontoon boat on the river wasn't unusual.

At least, for her.

"We spend most of our summer on this boat, on the lake and stuff," she said.

She explained to me how to set beaver traps near the tree roots reaching into the river, although not all beavers frequent these spots.

That beaver trapping is more for nuisance control, as opposed to hunting them for their often gristly meat.

That the pelt of a beaver is one of the softest types of fur to the touch.

Of course, Anderson County is not just about "country living," just like Kentucky isn't only made up of bourbon, the Bible Belt and basketball.

But if you ever get the opportunity to watch the sun rise and turn the river and the woods golden on a cold, clear morning like I did, there may be a moment when you ask yourself if there's any other life worth living.

Farm Bureau donates $200 to food pantry

From staff reports

In recognition Food Check-Out week, held Feb. 19-25, the Anderson County Farm Bureau Federation plans to donate $200 to be spent on food for Open Hands Food Pantry.

The High School FFA students on Feb. 21 will also participate in distributing literature concerning Agricultural Facts and Food production in America at Kroger and Wal-Mart.

According to the Kentucky Farm Bureau, "the cost of food in America remains affordable.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service, American consumers spend, on average, just over 10 percent of their disposable income for food.

"That means the average household will have earned enough disposable income - that portion of income available for spending or saving - to pay for its annual food supply in about 44 days, said Kentucky Farm Bureau president Mark Haney.

"America's food supply is the most affordable as well as the safest in the world," Haney said.

Domestic foods that are produced by farmers in Kentucky and throughout the United States are responsible, in part, for our nation's increased standard of living."

LOLA WORKED ALL DAY, DANCED ALL NIGHT

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 8, 1962 – Feb. 15, 1962

Billy Spencer received severe chest bruises while cutting trees at his farm on the Ninevah Road.

A limb he was cutting from a tree that had already been cut down struck Spencer. He was confined to his home.

Billy Young, son of Charles W. Young, jailer of Anderson County, was ill with rheumatic fever in a San Diego, Calif., hospital. He was expected to be hospitalized for six weeks or more, according to word received by his father.

Marine Pvt. Robert W. Baxter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Baxter, of Route 3, completed four weeks of advanced combat training with the First Infantry Training Regiment at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Mrs. Enoch Cubert, who lived on the Harry Wise Pike, purchased a 10-pound bag of Irish potatoes at a local grocery. When she got them home and started to peel them, she noticed one particularly hard one that her knife wouldn't cut. It proved to be a rock and looked very much like a petrified potato.

John C. Nicholls, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Nicholls of Lexington and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Leathers, received a promotion to Assistant Vice President of the Citizens Fidelity Bank and Trust Company of Louisville.

Jurors summoned for United States District Court at Frankfort were: Ann Blakemore, Carl Bird-whistell, Ben Lyen, Lawrenceburg; Wilmer Best, Alton Station; and C.V. McGuire, Sinai.

A 6-ounce jar of Maxwell House coffee was 79 cents at Model Market.

Jesse Lacefield, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lacefield of Alton Station was named assistant superintendent of Shelby County Schools.

Keith Klink, eighth grade student at the Lawrenceburg Elementary School was awarded a $25 savings bond as a district winner in the 1961 Soil Conservation Essay Contest. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klink.

Deaths

Charles Klien Vowels, 64, farmer and extensive landowner; Wade Leon Carey, 34; Roscoe Drury, 76, a retired farmer; John Everett Sparrow, 70, Anderson native; Feldon Sharp, 31, construction worker; Jesse Lee Thurman, 61, bus driver for the Louisville Transit Company; Carl Pryce Williams, 56, retired farmer; Mrs. Gertrude Wash, 86.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 11, 1982

Lola Carter, 100, and her daughter, Lula Searcy, 83, were featured in a story about Mrs. Carter's life.

"We were children together, got old together and are still together," said the petite 100-year-old referring to her daughter.

Lola Carter was born Feb. 1, 1882 and married 14 years later. Lula is her only child.

One of eight children born to Lewis Gideon and Mary Palmer Perry, Lola worked hard all hr life. "I've worked in a bottling house, tomato factory canning tomatoes, at home, staying with people in their homes, and on the farm in the cornfield and tobacco patch with my daddy," said the Anderson county native.

Even though Mrs. Carter, as her daughter calls her, attributes her long life to hard work, she still had her fun. "I used to work all day and dance all night," laughed the Broadway resident. "We went to Shell Bryan's one time. He was building a room onto his house and it didn't have a roof on it. He had some girls and gave 'em a dance. We were dancing and the awfulest snowstorm came up you ever saw. We danced all night in the storm. Breakdowns!" she said.

An avid follower of Coach Joe B. Hall and the Kentucky Wildcats, Lola said, "I'm for Kentucky anywhere it's at."

Her health had been good, but she had suffered a broken hip twice, causing her to walk with a walker.

"I've always liked to work and have worked all my life. It worries me to see Lulie do everything I used to do. When you work all your life and have to stop and sit, it's misery," she said.

A reception was held for Mrs. Carter at her residence on roadway in honor of her 100th birthday.

Attending were: Mrs. Carter, Lula Searcy, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Perry, Ollie Perry Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Allen Herndon, Mr. and Mrs. Don Perry and Donna, Mrs. Mary Vaughn, Thelma York, Myrtle Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Walldridge and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Perry, Mrs. Bertha Grace, Mary K. Grace, Emma Perry, Mary Hanks, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Perry, Lynne Perry, Marjorie Bailey, Madeline Sides, Geneva Catlett, Marjorie Carlton, Mabel Carlton, Mary Jane Hume, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, Mrs. Edna Hahn, Mrs. W.C. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hostetter, Mrs. E. R. Gritton, Emma B. Ward, Robert Cook, Eva Haeberlin, Mrs. John Giles, Janie Buntain, all of Lawrenceburg and Anderson County.

Hollis Perry, Danville; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Jewell, Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Newton Perry, Harrisonville; Bobbie and Shirley Dunn, Jean Shotwell, Mrs. Billy Hartley, Laura Ritchey and son and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Perry, all of Versailles, plus lots of others who did not register. Many friends also stopped by the next day, which was her actual birthday.

David A. Patrick, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Patrick, was the Anderson County winner of the Jim Claypool Poster Contest.

David Bird, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bird, and eighth grade student at Anderson Middle School was the winner of the annual Conservation Essay Contest.

Deaths

Fried fish, without the greasy feel or taste

Fish is healthy but fried fish is not as good for us as fish that's prepared without frying.

In fact, nutritionists say that frying fish negates the benefit of eating fish.

I like a crunchy coating on the fish but I don't like a greasy feel or taste. The best way to get crunch is to use panko bread crumbs. Corn flakes will work, but they still look like crunched corn flakes to me.

Regular bread crumbs are softer and don't get as crunchy.

Panko is a type of bread crumb, not a brand name. It's become more common in America in the last few years.

Joan Martin
Columnist

It originated in Japan.

The bread crumbs are made from a different type of bread that doesn't have crust. It has a lighter texture and is crispier than typical bread crumbs.

You will probably find it in the Asian food section of the grocery store.

Any mild flavored fish, fresh or frozen, can be used in this recipe. Adjust the spices to suit your taste.

Panko crusted tilapia – 2 servings

- 2 - 4-ounce tilapia filets
- 2 egg whites, beaten lightly
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon seasoning for fish like Old Bay or dill mixture
- 1/2 cup panko bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- Preheat oven to 400 F.

Future free cooking programs include Growing and Cooking with Herbs at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 21 at the Anderson County Extension Office. A five part Food Preservation Workshop will begin in May. Dates and cost will be announced soon.

Line baking sheet with aluminum foil and coat with non-stick cooking spray.

Combine lemon juice and seasoning with egg whites.

Dip each fillet into the egg white mixture and dredge in panko.

Bake 10 to 12 minutes for thin fillets. Cook until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Sprinkle each fillet with 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese

Remember that fish cooks at a higher temperature but for a shorter period of time than beef, pork and poultry.

Future free cooking programs include Growing and Cooking with Herbs at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 21 at the Anderson County Extension Office.

A five part Food Preservation Workshop will begin in May.

Dates and cost will be announced soon. Learn how to use a pressure canner and water bath canner.

You will can meat, poultry, fish, vegetables, fruits, tomatoes and tomato products. Make jelly and jam. You will also learn to preserve food by freezing and drying.

Ignoring God didn't work for pharaoh, and certainly won't work for you

It's interesting how we often try to follow God's rules on our terms, not his.

How many times have we thought about trying to quit sinning, yet plan on doing it again?

I know I have, and in my mind often think, "Well maybe next week or next month or later in life I will stop doing that."

The pharaoh of Egypt in the book of Exodus kept putting off God's commands when he kept the children of Israel in slavery. God brought about plague after plague against the tyranny of the Egyptians.

Can you imagine flies swarming everywhere? The rivers turned to blood? Innumerable frogs falling from the sky? All of the livestock of the land dead? Hail falling and storms worse than the nation of Egypt having ever seen? Locusts filling the houses and covering the ground until it was black, then sheer darkness over the land?

Finally, death to all firstborn including Pharaoh's son? Don't you think that throughout all of these plagues pharaoh kept telling himself just one more night — one more night and this will all end?

Surely pharaoh, the king of the land, would be victorious.

Unfortunately he wasn't. Are we not much like him in that we disobey God's commands and will for us?

In pharaoh's case, he went through more hardship and direct confrontation with God's commands than I can imagine, and he still wouldn't yield until the bitter end.

Don't wait to surrender your life to God. Christ describes what happens to us when we disobey God's commands in Luke 12:47: "And a servant who knows what the master wants, but isn't prepared and doesn't carry out those instructions, will be severely punished."

Seeking God's face without a formula

Circle this date on your calendar: Feb. 15, "John Frum Day."

Celebrated on the remote South Pacific island of Tanna, on John Frum Day islanders dress up as American G.I.s, with "USA" painted in red on their bare chests and backs and march in perfect step with bamboo rifles on their shoulders.

According to a 2006 Smithsonian magazine account, on this "holiest of days," islanders honor their messiah, John Frum. As one village elder explained, "John promised he'll bring planeloads and shiploads of cargo to us from America if we pray to him."

John Frum worship is said to have begun during World War II when American troops were stationed on the island and airplanes would bring them cargo and supplies. To the island natives who had no frame of reference, they interpreted what they saw as some sort of magic or miracle — giant objects filled with goodies coming down from the sky to their island.

After the war ended and the Americans left, Tanna islanders built symbolic landing strips and danced and chanted, hoping to encourage John Frum to bring them goodies — TVs, medicine, Coca-Cola, radios, etc. Frum followers believe he will come back on a Feb. 15. Anthropologists call this a "cargo cult," which form in other places of the world when modern technology meets an indigenous ("unmodern") people, such as when an airplane brings food to them.

I heard about cargo cults while listening to a radio program about superstitions. The show hosts were talking about their own superstitions, like a lucky shirt that one of them always wore to job interviews because every time she has worn it, she got the job.

That got me thinking about how I sometimes approach God. Even though I know all God requires of any of his children is to come to him, believing that he welcomes his own with open arms, sometimes — oh, who am I kidding? Often — I attach all sorts of caveats: "It's been a long time since I've prayed or read the Bible, so first I better do something religious or God won't listen," I'll think.

It's easy to believe that what I do brings the face and favor of God, but he doesn't roll that way. It's never my fervor; it's never my faith. What gives me access to God is being his child, through my faith in Christ. It's his grace alone that allows me — bids me — to ask, seek and knock so that I may receive and find and have doors opened for me to walk through.

Unlike with John Frum, who may or may not come to visit his faithful followers, God promises to draw near to all who draw near to him.

Unlike John Frum followers, I don't need to paint my body or march in perfect step to seek God's face and have him accept me. Not even my lack of perfect obedience can keep God from welcoming me.

There's no formula, no secret, no one sacred holy day.

There's only mercy. There's only grace.

You hear and read on a regular basis of people talking about "Going to church." When you hear that expression you know that they mean that one is headed to a building somewhere. The phrase "Going to church" is actually not the best ways of stating what is taking place.

Often times we use the expression "Going to church" because we do not really understand what the church is and when it assembles. The term church is translated from the Greek word Ekklesia and must be translated as a gathering of people out of their homes into some sort of public assembly. This must be considered as an "Assembly of God." Remember that it was Jesus who said, he would build His church (Matt. 16:18), and he wasn't speaking of a physical building.

The term church is used in at least three ways in the New Testament.

1. General or universal designating all the saved
— Matt. 16:18; Eph. 1:22-23
2. Local church designating the church in a local area
— 1 Cor. 1:2; 1 Thess. 1:1
3. An assembly of saints worshipping
— 1 Cor. 11:18; 14:4-5.

So with all of this in mind we see that the church comes together, and its purpose for coming together is to worship. Come to the building at 1241 Bypass 127 South here in Lawrenceburg, Ky., and you will find the church gathered to worship. The church of Christ MEETS at this location!

aid who receive services from school nurses. "Each time a student is seen by one of the nurses, we file a claim with Medicaid," he said. "If we file for a dollar, we have to reimburse 28.8 cents to the state."

But according to current trends in decreased Medicaid funding for the state, Todd said, the health department will most likely be responsible for an increase in state reimbursement. "The way the trend is going, there just isn't going to be enough dollars for everyone," he said.

Todd said he was unsure of the exact amount of revenue the health department has received through the Medicaid match, and has not been able to compile that data at this time. Todd cited the salary cuts of the regular clinic staff as one reason for requesting funds from the school board. "If we're asking the employees to take less, there's certainly nothing wrong with asking the school to reimburse us for a little bit more money," Todd said in a follow-up interview.

The health board will consider other options, Todd said, if the board of education decides not to supply the needed $9,360 such as cutting two hours out of every work week per nurse, or eliminating hours on in-service days, which are usually dedicated for data entry.

Derek Shouse, director of student services, emphasized the nurses' roles in caring for students, as well as their needed assistance with keeping up to date on medical immunization records and other medical data.

"We have very dedicated nurses in these positions," he said. "I want to emphasize how needed these positions are to our school."

Board member Lee Hahn agreed. "I think it's a good investment," Hahn said of the $9,360 request, saying the current nursing staff may be less expensive to employ than contracting new nurses. "I'd be willing to cut back on a few field trips or new uniforms."

Board vice chairman James Sargent echoed Hahn in his opinion. "And that's my main concern, what the kids are getting," he said. "It doesn't bother me to spend money if I know some kid's getting service."

Chairman Roger McDowell, however, cautioned against committing to the increase in funding for the school nurse contract before exploring other options. "Our job here is to manage money for our schools," he said. "I don't know if we can afford increases in any area."

The school nurse contract with the health department increased by $10,000 for the 2011-2012 school year, Mitchell said, compared to the $102,000 contract paid for by the district last year.

"I think it was very good for the health board chair to have a discussion with our board early on, as we're both planning budgets," she said.

The contract with the health department will not be officially eligible for renewal for the upcoming year until April.

No action was taken by the school board on the discussion of school nurses provided by the health department.

Todd later said he felt confident the board of education would honor the health department's funding request.

"I feel very confident that they will, just from general feedback," he said.

The board of health will make its final decision on its budget at its Feb. 15 meeting.

"Hopefully, we don't have to come back next year," Todd said of the funding request. "And hopefully, [the board of education] can help us."

Board moves kindergarten to Turner, daycare to Ward

The board also unanimously voted to move three kindergarten classes to Robert B. Turner Elementary due to the lack of space available at the future Ezra B. Sparrow Early Childhood Center.

In addition to the kindergarten classes, the existing ECC daycare will be moved to Emma B. Ward Elementary for the upcoming school year.

At this point in the school year, ECC principal Melissa Lentz said, the Early Childhood Center has 16 preschool and 26 kindergarten students in daycare.

The Anderson News reported that the new ECC building does not have the necessary square feet to house all current classes of kindergarten and the daycare and regional training centers, and that some classrooms must be relocated to other existing elementary schools in the district.

Robert B. Turner Elementary will now be the new home for three kindergarten classrooms, or about 72 students, for the upcoming school year.

"As far as we're concerned, this is a temporary solution," board member Benita Young said.

Hahn agreed. "We're four rooms away from a perfect situation," he said. "It's not going to be the best case scenario; we're trying to do the best with what we've got to work with."

Mitchell said she does not foresee having to hire new staff, and that she and affected building principals will be deciding staff allocations and relocations within the next few weeks.

"We want to make sure they are equitable and even," Mitchell said.

The board of education decided to table a decision to on where to relocate the current regional training center to the board's Jan. 20 meeting.

Wayne Darnell of Lawrenceburg looks for a gravestone of an unmarked soldier, one of 12 veterans in the Fairview Christian cemetery without foot markers.

SOLDIERS

marker designating Waldrige's years of service. "That let's everyone know they are a veteran," Darnell said of the foot marker.

The late Neil Brothers, who lived across the road from the cemetery, told Darnell more veterans may be buried without foot markers.

"That got me thinking," Darnell said, "well, maybe there's others."

Darnell has spent years cataloguing those buried at Fairview cemetery, and years taking the little information headstones offer — names, date of birth and date of death — and attempting to find other unknown veterans.

Most are Union soldiers, Darnell said. Fairview cemetery, he said, sat on the line between those who joined up with the Union Army, and those who served in the Confederacy. One veteran Darnell has found served in the Spanish-American War, and several served in World War I and II.

His research has led to interesting results, such as discovering that Confederate captain John Barnett was not a deserter, as his relatives were led to believe, but rather a prisoner of war.

Darnell has found 12 veterans buried at Fairview cemetery, registered as veterans in military records as having served, but with no grave markers to signify or remember their service.

Darnell and church elder Scotty Peach have now catalogued every grave into a computer spreadsheet, a process that took about eight weeks.

Peach said he first became interested in finding foot markers for veterans through his work as an elder in cataloguing the gravesites.

Now he's on board with Darnell in showing respect for those who have served by fundraising to purchase foot markers for every veteran.

One 1x2 foot marker can cost anywhere from $450-1,000, Darnell and Peach said. They've received three free foot markers from the Veterans Administration, but need to acquire the rest through their own funds and donations.

"It's important to me," Darnell said.

Peach agreed.

"That's our goal, to have every soldier in Fairview cemetery have a foot stone," he said.

Anderson County's Austin Hall goes for a basket against Henry County last Tuesday.

Wacky warm-up starts real hoops season

Collins boys solid pick, Anderson girls prohibitive favorite in district tourney

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

What has gone on since Nov. 28 has just been the warm-up. A prolonged one, no doubt, but it still has been the warm-up. It doesn't matter what a basketball team has done from that date until now. All that really matters is what happens starting around the state on Monday night.

At Anderson County, the 30th District Tournament tips off Tuesday night when the top-seeded Bearcats host fourth-seeded Spencer County. In a four-team district, that usually means the top team is playing a weak sister, but in case you missed it, the Anderson County boys' one loss in district play was at the hands of...

...Spencer County.

Told you that what happened so far didn't really matter.

On the girls' side, however, normalcy is expected to reign. The seedings in the two tournaments are exactly the same and Anderson defeated Spencer, 90-12, during the regular season. If the Lady Bearcats, ranked seventh in the state by Rating the State last week, go down in a district elimination game, then I should take up a new profession.

Like managing Digger Phelps' campaign for mayor of Lexington, Ky.

But back to the boys' side of the tournament.

The 2011-12 season has been one of the strangest in the 30th District and Eighth Region in recent history. Anderson had a chance to sew up the district's top seed by beating Spencer but could not come through. Then, just as everyone was counting points allowed by the district's teams in order to break a three-way tie at the top of the district, Anderson's old nemesis and bitter rival, Shelby County, scored a solid win over Spencer that took care of all of the speculation about seedings.

Yep, the same Shelby that had won just four other games and had lost every other district game by at least 10 points.

So Anderson, which beat Collins on a last-second shot, is at the top of the seeding heap while Spencer, the team that bested the Bearcats, is at the bottom.

And all that big win got Shelby was a date with its biggest rival, cross-town foe Collins, which has gotten an abundance of new life in the last few weeks. But more on that later.

C'est la vie in the Eighth Region this year.

For years, the 30th had been a district that was simply the domain of Anderson and Shelby. No one else really mattered most years as the only way anyone other than those two advanced to the regional tournament was if the luck of the blind draw paired them in the first round. Before the Collins split a year ago, the last time someone eliminated Anderson or Shelby, other than each other, was when Henry County defeated Anderson in the semi-finals in 1989.

And Henry was moved from the district after the 2005 season.

It's no longer like that. Before last

Bearcats regional runner-up, 10 move on to state tourney

DANVILLE - Six minutes might have seemed like six hours to Eric Spencer on Saturday.

The Anderson County High School senior had taken the advantage less than 20 seconds into the 145-pound final at the Region 2 Wrestling Tournament, but then had to go the distance to become Anderson's first regional champion in at least five years.

"The match seemed to drag on after I got the big lead," Spencer said.

He had taken the advantage over Boyle County's Zack Cope early with a reversal at the 1:43 mark of the first period. By the end of the frame, it was apparent that the only way Spencer could be denied the title was if he made a major mistake and allowed himself to be pinned.

Instead, Spencer scored a 12-2 major decision on the mat at Danville High School.

"I had felt pretty confident going in," Spencer said. Seeded No. 1, Spencer got a quick pin in his first match and was never in trouble in any of his three bouts.

"There was a new kid from LaRue County (Mason Ray, who Spencer defeated in the semi-finals) but that didn't turn out to be a bad match. I wrestled pretty good today.

"Last year, I didn't make my weight by 2/10 of a pound at the regional," Spencer said. "This year, I was sure I was going to make the weight."

He did much more than that.

Real reversal for state-bound Mat Cat

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Even if he never wins another wrestling match, Travis Kaelin has put together a reversal few can match.

It won't show up on YouTube and heaven knows it won't be on SportsCenter. But the Anderson County High School senior is a far different person than he was when he came out for wrestling three years ago.

Then, Kaelin was a 250-pound freshman. "I wasn't very good," he remembered last week. "I won only three matches that first year."

That's three out of more than 40, or a winning percentage that would cause many teenagers to find a job in fast food.

Instead, Kaelin got away from the high-calorie diet. He worked with former Anderson County coach Tom Castle on just becoming a better wrestler.

Just get better. It was a simple goal.

Friday, Kaelin will hit the mat for the KHSAA State Wrestling Tournament with a chance to show just how much better, and slimmer, he's gotten. Kaelin, now nearly 60 pounds lighter than when he started wrestling, will go into the tournament as one of the favorites to make the medal round in the 195-pound class. Ranked fifth statewide in his class, Kaelin is the highest-ranked of 10 Anderson wrestlers that

Peyton just misses state berth

VERSAILLES — Two-hundredths of a second.

It is a period of time so small that it is 10 to 20 times faster than the blink of an eye.

And it can be an eternity when swimming for speed. Anderson County's Braden Peyton found that out over the weekend. The high school senior turned in a swim the 50-yard freestyle in 23.72 seconds during Saturday's Region 3 meet at Falling Springs Recreation Center in Versailles.

But it is less than the blink of an eye short of being enough to earn Anderson County's first qualifier for the state swimming meet, according to Anderson coach Karla Phillips.

Peyton had finished fourth, two spots short of an automatic state berth, but was hoping for an at-large berth before the bad news came in.

Another Anderson swimmer, James Mason, also just missed the state, finishing third in the boys' 500-yard freestyle.

Mason swam a 5:20.91 in the final, six seconds off second-place finisher Alberto Zambrano, of Woodford County, but three seconds away from an at-large bid.

As a team, the Anderson boys scored 53 points, more than double their output of 2011. The Anderson girls scored two points.

Eight Anderson individual entries finished high enough in Friday's preliminaries to return to Saturday's finals. Three of those were placed in the championship heat. Kylie Gehefer and Cameron Peyton joined Braden Peyton and Mason for Saturday's finals races.

In addition, four Anderson relay teams advanced to Saturday's races.

The showing was Anderson's best ever as a team. "We did very well," said first-year coach Karla Phillips. "I am so proud."

Mager's college coach comments on signing
 Anderson County High School girls' soccer player Emily Mager signed with Queens University of Charlotte, N.C. on Feb. 1. A response to The Anderson News' request for comment from Queens coach Katie Talbert was received shortly after the Feb. 8 edition of The Anderson News went to press.

Talbert is high on Mager's ability to play at the NCAA Division II school. Mager was a second team all-state selection last fall.

"We are very excited about Emily joining the Royal family for the fall 2012," Talbert said in an e-mail. "Emily is a technically strong goalkeeper who has been trained very well over her high school and club careers. We are looking forward to utilizing her athleticism and love of the game in order to develop her into a key part of our collegiate program."

week, only the now-weakened Shelby was not given any chance of winning this year's boys' district race.

Got all that? Don't worry. It is a lot of history and a lot of ifs, ands and buts that only add flavor to the fact that beginning Tuesday night, it is a one-game season. It doesn't make any difference if you have gone undefeated, if you lose that first district game, your basketball for the remainder of the year will be pickup games or watching.

It has happened in the past. And it is what makes the Kentucky high school tournaments the best anywhere.

Anderson County will have a bit of a home-court advantage. The Bearcats have won the district title two of the last three times the tournament has been in Lawrenceburg. Of course they had Eric McKee (2003) and C.J. Penny (2009) those years too. But in the 15 times Anderson has hosted a district tournament since the current school opened in 1967-68, the Bearcats have been eliminated in the first game just three times, the last coming in 2000.

But as Anderson coach Glen Drury likes to say, a team still has to come out and play.

It all begins next Tuesday night.

Lady Bearcats looking for fourth straight crown

Anderson County was quite a power when girls' basketball returned to Kentucky in 1974-75. The Lady Bearcats won four straight district championships and captured two regional titles in that span.

But they had to wait 31 years before winning another district title in 2009. Now, the Lady Bearcats are going for their fourth straight again.

On paper, Anderson looks like a strong favorite, but Collins has enough firepower to make it interesting. The Titans' win over Ballard last week underscored the fact that Collins will be a force.

Collins boys get late-season transfers

The buzz around the Eighth Region in the last week has centered on a pair of transfers that have joined the Collins team just before the district tournament.

Norvis Smith and his brother, Terez, moved to Simpsonville from Trenton, Mich., on Feb. 5. According to Josh Cook, sports editor of our sister paper, The Sentinel-News, the Smiths moved to Kentucky when their father got a job with the Ford plant in Louisville.

The brothers had played in Michigan up until time to move to Kentucky. After enrolling at Collins last week, they were cleared to play by the KHSAA. They made their Collins debut in Friday's win over Nelson County, combining for 15 points and 7 rebounds.

Both are accomplished athletes, with Terez, a 6-foot-6 junior, already being contacted by several schools for basketball most notably, Bowling Green. Norvis, a 6-3 senior, is a stand-out in track and football.

Immediately, there were questions about the transfers, but from the outside looking in, it appears this development is simply a stroke of unbelievable good luck for Collins.

In an era when transfers are often looked out with quite a bit of skepticism - and rightly so, I might add - this instance appears perfectly legit.

High school sports are far different than college sports, where the bottom line is often, well, the bottom line and ESPN drives the bus.

At the high school level, rules are made to balance competitive fairness and participation. Given the fact that the young men moved with their family in a legitimate relocation, it looks like the KHSAA made the right call.

And for Collins, at least, the timing could not have been better.

Lady Bearcats impressive in win over Owen County

Brown scores 21 to lead Anderson past regional foe

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

The assumed formula for Anderson County's success is simply defense first.

It worked Monday night as the Lady Bearcats whipped regional foe Owen County 61-46. It was the same Owen County program that left Lawrenceburg with a decisive win when it visited last January and put a major scare in the Lady Bearcats in last year's regional tournament.

This time, there would be no doubt as Anderson went on a 12-0 run after giving up the opening basket. The Lady Bearcats never looked back.

By the end of the first quarter, Anderson led 21-8 and Owen was never able to pare its deficit to less than eight points the rest of the way.

"Our defense was really good in the first half, especially at the start of the game," Anderson coach Tony Kays said. "When you get off to a great start like that, it is a good thing."

Senior Sydney Brown, who was honored for passing 1,000 points in her career before the game, led Anderson with 21 points. Ariel McKee added 16 while Makenzie Cann, also honored for 1,000 points, scored 10 and dished out seven assists.

"Sydney is smart and has a high basketball IQ," Kays said. "She recognized the mismatch tonight. If you don't double (-team) her, she should score every time."

Brown repeatedly posted up, took passes from Cann or someone else on the perimeter, then turned and scored. The smallish Lady Rebels had no answer.

Anderson's lead extended to as many as 18 points early in the fourth quarter, but Owen refused to give in.

"They are well-coached and disciplined," Kays said. "They are going to compete. In a game like this, it is good to see what we did well and what we didn't do well."

The teams could easily play again in the Eighth Region Tournament, to be held at Anderson in two weeks.

Rianna Gayheart, last year's Eighth Region Player of the Year, led Owen with 15 points. The Lady Rebels fell to 20-6.

Anderson won its seventh straight and improved to 21-5.

30th District media pick the district tournament

The post-season tournaments will have more media coverage than any other high school basketball games of the year. The sports editors of the newspapers covering the 30th District have all seen the teams playing in the tournament and have their own thoughts on how it will go. Here are their takes on next week's district tournament.

Boys' 30th District

John Herndon, Anderson News: "It has been the most balanced year I have ever seen in the 30th District. Collins is playing awfully well and the addition of two transfers late in the season certainly helps the Titans. Anderson, Shelby and Spencer have all been up-and-down but all are capable of winning on a given night. Nothing would surprise me."

John Shindlebower, Spencer Magnet: "Parity is the word of the day in the 30th District this year. No team made it through the district schedule without at least one loss. On paper, Collins looks the strongest, but the title is won on the court. This season, anything is possible."

Josh Cook, Sentinel-News: "Collins' two new transfers from Michigan, brothers Norvis and Terez Smith, should give the Titans superior depth to outlast the competition in the 30th District Tournament."

Girls' 30th District

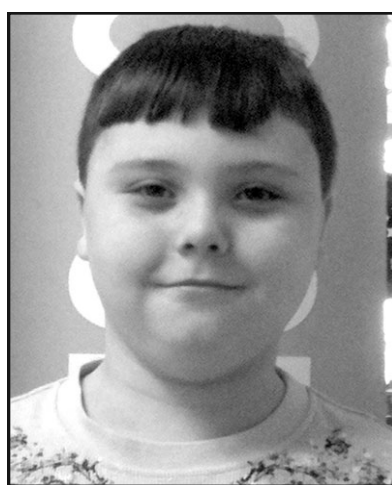

John Herndon, Anderson News: "If anyone other than Anderson County wins the district, it will be a surprise of monumental proportions. That being said, Collins has enough athleticism to give the Lady Bearcats a run for their money.

"Shelby County is very young, but I like the job Coach Mike Sowers is doing there. I have not seen Spencer County, but the Lady Bears have a monumental task in front of them to stop an Anderson team that has been in and out of the state's Top 10 all year."

John Shindlebower, Spencer Magnet: "While the boys' tournament lacks a favorite, the girls' tournament figures to be Anderson County's to lose. They are the dominant team, by far, in the district and the battle figures to be for the runner-up spot.

Josh Cook, Sentinel-News: "Anderson County's overall talent should propel the Bearcats to the 30th District title."

McKee's fire burns, smokes Woodford

Sophomore scores 20 after halftime

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

VERSAILLES – Don't let Eriel McKee's smile fool you. There is a fire burning deep in her heart.

The Anderson County sophomore proved Friday night that you don't want to give that fire time to be stoked with some time on the bench. And there was plenty of time for the fire to grow after McKee picked up two quick fouls at Woodford County. But that fire erupted into a five-alarm blaze as far as Woodford was concerned. McKee scored 20 of her game-high 24 points in the second half to lead the Lady Bearcats to a 66-52 win.

McKee was none too fond of having to take a seat less than five minutes in and already threatening to blow out an old rival. "It was really hard," McKee said. "I knew (Woodford) would be coming up and I wasn't going to be in there."

"Her stats were scary," Anderson coach Tony Kays said. "She was all over the place. She had 6 rebounds and 3 steals."

And McKee was almost a non-factor in the first half. "One thing that hurt McKee was she in foul trouble. You can't score if you are sitting on the bench," Woodford coach Jay Lucas said with a grin.

But he was not smiling when the second half opened. "She came out with a little fire in her belly in the second half and did a good job," he said.

The Yellow Jackets simply had no answer for McKee, who repeatedly sliced through a variety of Woodford defensive sets for layups, hit jump shots and disrupted the Woodford attack with steals, the most spectacular coming when

Lady Bearcats rout Bethlehem

Eriel McKee scored 25 points while Sydney Brown and Makenzie Cann both joined the 1,000-point club at Anderson County as the Lady Bearcats trounced host Bethlehem, 71-39, last Tuesday in Bardstown. Brown finished with 10 points to raise her career total to 1,009 while Cann scored 9 points, giving her 1,004 on her career. Brown, a senior, is a 4-year starter, while Cann, a sophomore, is on the first team for the third consecutive year. McKee had pass the 1,000-point milestone earlier this year.

Anderson roared to a 22-12 lead after a quarter and was never threatened. "We played well in all areas: defense, passing, and rebounding. Our intensity and focus were there and we took care of business. We forced them into a lot of turnovers and transitioned well. We had big games from Brown, Cann and McKee."

—Staff reports

she reached high for a pass in the backcourt, then drove for a layup to end a 15-0 run that put things out of reach midway through the fourth quarter.

"I was just reacting to the plays," McKee said.

McKee was not alone, though. Classmate Makenzie Cann scored 20 points, including 15 in the first half when she buried three shots from beyond the 3-point line.

"Cann played a great game," Kays said. "She had been in a little slump. Every great shooter has a slump but she came out of it. She has done the little things to strengthen her teammates. Tonight, she had a complete effort."

Lucas was impressed. "I am sure they had 95 percent of their points in the second half," he said.

Not quite.

It was only 25 of 30 (83.3 percent) but who is counting?

It was that kind of night for the Lady Bearcats, one that indicated they might be hitting their stride just in time for the post-season run.

They withstood Woodford's best punch when the Yellow Jackets outpointed them 14-3 over the last two minutes of the first quarter, then methodically put their old rival away in an impressive manner.

"Woodford County is dangerous team because they shoot the three. They hit 10 of them," Kays said.

But he also felt his team could do a better job of slowing drives and getting a hand in the face of Woodford long-range shooters.

Fittingly, the Lady Bearcats claimed the lead for good when Alex Avritt made it 28-26 with a drive for the first of her three consecutive baskets. Avritt came off the bench for seven points, a note not lost on Kays.

"Our subs were making a contribution," Kays said. "We always ask them to first play defense. They did a good job. Alex had the hot hand for a while and Kaci (Currens) didn't force anything. She let the offense come to her."

"Kali (Whiteside) had a good game. She brought a lot of energy."

Whiteside scored only two points but created havoc around the basket.

Danielle Watson came off the bench for some quality minutes and hit a 3-pointer from the left wing that effectively started Anderson's decisive push midway through the third quarter.

"I knew eventually they would shut us down and they did in the second half," Lucas said.

Woodford fell to 18-10 on the year.

"At halftime we wanted to come out and do a better job defensively," Kays said. "They got 19 points in the second half. That was the difference in game."

It has been the formula for Anderson's most successful teams in its current run of six straight 20-win seasons. The year before that, the Lady Bearcats won 19.

"A lot of that is a credit to the players that were here before, and the ones that were before them," Kays said. "The great thing is that we have been able to do that against tougher competition. I have been blessed with a lot of good players."

For 16 minutes Friday night, Eriel McKee was as good as any of them.

Anderson defeats Henry County

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

The resurgence of Anderson County basketball, 2012 version, came full circle last Tuesday night.

After overcoming an early deficit to defeat Henry County, 59-50, the Bearcats sported a 17-6 record. The wins of 2012 equaled the losses of 2011, when Anderson's season ended with the program's worst record in 25 years.

And last Tuesday, Anderson didn't look pretty at times - the Bearcats shot just 24 percent in the first half - but they prevailed in an outing that could have been very similar to any number of contests in the post-season.

"This was the kind of game that is hard on an old coach, but you have got to have them," Anderson coach Glen Drury said. "You are not going to make shots every game."

The Bearcats withstood an early Wildcat barrage, then put on a nice passing display, resulting in easy shots, over the final 16 minutes. Anderson connected on better than 54 percent of its shots in the second half.

"We couldn't get our shots to fall," said Anderson junior Jay Smith, who led the Bearcats with 20 points. "In the second half, we are able to spread it out and get better shots."

Bearcats split weekend road trips

The Anderson County boys' basketball team split a pair of road games over the weekend, winning at Berea on Friday then seeing victory slip through their hands in the final 90 seconds Saturday night at Mercer County.

Friday, Anderson got 20 points and 12 rebounds from Seth Carmichael as the Bearcats rolled past Berea, 58-43.

"We started off good," Anderson assistant coach Bryan Hyatt said in an e-mail. "We got two baskets from Austin Hall. They started a small lineup and had no answer for him."

Darrin Laswell canned a trio of 3-pointers in the first half as Anderson pulled away from the Pirates.

Hyatt said there was no secret to Anderson's success. "We took care of the ball, guarded and rebounded."

Unfortunately for the Bearcats, they did not do that the next night, seeing a 21-11 at the end of the first quarter go by the books as Mercer rallied for a 49-48 win.

Mercer got some momentum, scoring twice just before halftime to cut Anderson's lead to six. Anderson still led by four with 1:30 to go but defensive mistakes allowed Mercer to win. "We were unable to convert in the lane and we struggled to score," Hyatt said. "We felt we didn't play good, but Mercer has to get some credit for that."

the free throw line, hitting all 12 of his attempts.

Henry had scored the first eight points but the Anderson defense held Henry scoreless for the final 4:57 of the second quarter to stay within 21-17 at the break.

"Our defense was keeping us in the game in the first half," Drury said.

Jake Hartlage would eventually lead Henry with 21 points, while Austin Dunn, who had scored 24 points in his previous game, added 14 and burned the Bearcats early with some long-range bombing.

The Bearcats finally took the lead at 26-23 when Lowell Gordon swished a 3-pointer from the left wing to cap a 9-2 outburst over the first 3:30 of the second half. Ironically for Gordon, who has been among the state's top 3-point shooters all season, it was his only basket of the night.

"Gordon and (Darrin) Laswell do a great job for us, but we can't expect them to carry the scoring load every game," Drury said.

"We were aggressive," Drury said. "We have got to be aggressive."

"We have got to be aggressive because there are times we have a hard time scoring."

"Henry County is a quality team that has good size and their guards handle the ball well."

Ranking the Region: Oldham, South at top

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Boys Eighth Region

1. Oldham County (23-5, 6-1 against regional competition)
Oldham moves into my No. 1 spot this week. The Colonels have been playing very well of late and have a deep and experienced team. Winning 23 games, no matter who you play, is impressive.

2. South Oldham (17-8, 9-1)
South is a big-time threat. The Dragons have really not regressed as much as it has been Oldham playing well right now.

3. Collins (18-10, 6-4)
Collins might have had the most athleticism in the region already but the addition of two athletic transfers gives the Titans the most size and depth in the region. It can be a lethal combination. The only question mark about the Titans is how the transfers will affect the team against good competition.

4. Simon Kenton (19-7, 6-2)
The Pioneers play defense with a passion and an impressive win over Clark County last week reminds us Simon Kenton can beat anyone.

5. Owen County (19-9, 16-4)
Not many are picking Owen to win the Eighth Region, but overlooking the Rebels is a mistake. They might have the region's best inside-outside combo.

Others to watch: North Oldham, Gallatin County, Anderson County.

Projected regional field: Winners - Oldham Co., Collins, Owen Co., Simon Kenton. Runners-up - South Oldham, Anderson Co., Gallatin Co., Grant Co.

Girls' Eighth Region

1. South Oldham (21-4, 10-1)
The Lady Dragons still keep rolling along. Forward Mary Dye went over the 1,000-point mark in her career last week. South has been playing very well all season long.

2. Anderson Co. (21-5, 4-1)
Lady Bearcats have been very impressive of late, winning seven straight games. Not many high school teams have two 1,000-point scorers. Anderson has three.

3. Walton-Verona (23-6, 12-1)
Any thoughts that Walton-Verona was going to rest on the laurels of its All-A Classic championship were quickly dispelled when the Bearcats routed Lexington Catholic last week in Lexington.

4. Owen Co. (20-6, 17-3)
Any team with a guard as dominant as Rianna Gayheart must be reckoned with. Gayheart, a Northern Kentucky signee, can take over a game and has strong role players around her.

5. Collins (20-9, 8-4)
Not many are picking Collins to win the region, but the Titans could have plenty of say in who does. Collins is a dangerous team with a pair of strong athletic players in Leeara Cardwell and Aaliyah Wells.

Others to watch: Simon Kenton, Gallatin County

Projected regional field: District winners - South Oldham, Anderson Co., Owen Co., Walton-Verona. Runners-up - Oldham County, Collins, Gallatin County, Simon Kenton.

10 Anderson wrestlers who qualified for the state tournament, to be held Friday and Saturday, Feb. 17-18, at Alltech Arena at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington.

Four other Anderson wrestlers placed second in the program's best showing at the regional tournament in recent memory. As a team the Bearcats finished second with 214.50 points, well behind top-ranked LaRue County. A perennial power, LaRue finished with 270 points and won eight of the 14 weight classes.

The top four wrestlers in each weight class advance to this week's tournament.

"I thought we had a couple of kids that could have done better but team-wise we did well," Anderson coach Graham Carlton said.

Two other Anderson wrestlers, Austin Dillow and T.W. Stockton, went into the regional tournament seeded No. 1, but both dropped overtime decisions in the championship bout.

Dillow went down to defeat in the 132-pound final when LaRue's Ray-mundo Perez scored on a reversal with 31.4 seconds to go in overtime. Dillow and Perez traded reversals in a wild final 20 seconds of regulation to send the match to overtime at 3-3. Perez had taken the lead with 19 seconds to go, but Dillow responded 14 seconds later to send the bout to the extra period.

Stockton saw an 8-5 lead over John Hardin's Marquis Fleet slip away in the final minute of the 138-pound final. Fleet scored on an escape, then was awarded a takedown with 8 seconds to go in regulation.

Stockton and Fleet went to three overtimes before Fleet scored a takedown to win the match in a bit of an upset. Stockton was ranked ninth statewide in the final season rankings released Monday.

"It was terrible to be seeded No. 1 and go down like that," Carlton said of Dillow and Stockton.

Anderson's Chris Fitzpatrick fell to LaRue's top-ranked Jordan Newberry, 8-3, in the 220-pound final while LaRue's Bernard Ray, also ranked No. 1, pinned Alex Swartz just 30 seconds into the 182 championship match.

Travis Kaelin, ranked fifth in the state, but seeded third in the ultra-competitive 195-pound class, Lane Bicknell (120 pounds), Zack Perry (152) and Jake Vincent (160) all move on to the state tournament as third-place finishers while Chris McDaniel goes in as a four-seed.

"Bicknell finished a little better than we expected," Carlton noted.

Kaelin is Anderson's highest-ranked wrestler, but Dillow, Stockton and Fitzpatrick are all ranked in the state's Top 10. As a team, Anderson is curiously ranked 20th after spending much of the season in the Top 15 as a team.

"I think we have several that could easily reach the medal round," Carlton said.

That includes Spencer, who was ranked 19th statewide, even after winning a regional crown. Carlton thinks Spencer has a shot to make a run at being Anderson County's first state wrestling champion.

"I think he will do really well at the state. The 145 class is wide open across the state," Carlton said.

Comment at www.theandersonnews.com.

will be in action this weekend.

That is quite a difference from just getting better and winning three matches.

"I have come a long way," Kaelin says with a smile. After Saturday's regional tournament, Kaelin has won 40 of 47 matches this year. He comes in at a svelte 193 pounds on his 6-foot-1-inch frame.

"Travis has completely transformed himself as a wrestler," Anderson coach Graham Carlton says.

First, Kaelin simply got in shape. He says he did that "working out, working out and working out and eating right."

But beyond the training table, Kaelin has become an accomplished competitor on the mat. He surprised many when he was named the Most Outstanding Wrestler at the prestigious Woodford County Invitational just after Christmas.

"From out of nowhere, he has put himself in a position to earn a medal at state," Carlton said. "He works hard at practice every day, and he has a much sharper focus this year than in years past."

Even those who just follow the Bearcat wrestling program have noticed the difference.

"He is a kid that when he came out, I thought would never last four years," says Bearcat fan Mike Fitzpatrick, whose son, Chris is one of Kaelin's teammates. "He has gone from being that bad, to being one of the finest wrestlers in the state."

"It is all because of his hard work and total dedication."

It has been quite a ride for a young man who simply followed his older brother, Ricky, and joined the team. "I thought it looked like fun and wanted to do it."

But no one could have envisioned Kaelin's meteoric rise to the top.

"Between my junior and senior years, I worked a lot with Coach Castle," says Kaelin, who hopes to wrestle in college while studying for a career in civil engineering.

Castle, however, accepted the challenge to practically build the Scott County program from scratch just before school started. In stepped Carlton, who had been Anderson's first state wrestling qualifier a decade before. "He is a lot like Coach Castle," Kaelin says, "but there is a lot more conditioning."

Last Saturday, Carlton and Kaelin embraced after Kaelin defeated Central Hardin's Brett Rafn to advance to the state. The decisive win, however, had come in the consolation semifinals as Kaelin had dropped a decision to North Hardin's Darrius Parrot in the championship semis.

"I wrestled like crap," Kaelin said. "I could have beaten him if I had wrestled better. Coach told me you have to forget about that and focus on getting to the state."

The loss to Parrot had been the rub at the region. Despite being ranked fifth statewide, Kaelin was behind Parrot and eventual champion B.J. Carman of LaRue County. There was little room for error in the regional tournament.

Not only did Kaelin handle Rafn, he returned to the mat to pin John Hardin's Mark Thompson for third place. The match lasted just 24 seconds, but was important for the state seeding. As a three-seed at the state, Kaelin will be away from a regional champion in the first round of the state tournament.

It might not matter. "You have to go out every time," Kaelin says. "There are people that sneak in under those rankings. They are under the radar."

Even though he's now one of Kentucky's best, Travis Kaelin knows all about being under the radar.

"I feel pretty good about it," Kaelin says of his state chances. "I am still ranked No. 5 in the state."

CHRISTIAN ACADEMY OF LAWRENCEBURG

Christian Academy drops games From staff reports

Last Tuesday the Christian Academy of Lawrenceburg boys' basketball team dropped a 46-44 decision to Pendleton Christian Academy. The game was played in Florence.

Christian Academy had defeated Pendleton in a game earlier this season.

The Rams gave the Praisers several chances to get back in the game after leading, 25-18 at halftime.

The Christian Academy guards set the tone of the Rams' attack with good outside shooting. Jared Slaughter had 12 points and Dillon Harper led the team with 16 points.

The Rams also had good post play from Jason Smith, who scored 8 points.

The Rams had the lead going into the fourth quarter when the Praisers caught fire and used good hustle to catch up in the last few minutes. The teams traded baskets until the last seconds.

Pendleton hit two free throws with 5.4 seconds to play, then The Rams, behind by two points, mishandled the inbound pass and the opportunity to tie the game.

Sometimes how a player handles a loss is more often a view of his character than his attitude in the midst of a win.

This became evident in the game that the Rams lost, 64-41, at Cornerstone in Shelbyville, the third meeting between the schools this year.

The Rams did not have the spark to win against a good team like the Bulldogs.

When teams that are equal in talent, it comes down to who wants to win the game the most.

Though Cornerstone led from the tip off, the Rams could have been in the thick of the game if they had just hit layups.

As a team they missed those put backs over and over.

But the big surprise of the game was in the fourth quarter when Christian Academy coach Cory Robinson pulled his starters and played his bench players.

The reserves came out with a lot of hustle and drive attempting to make their playing time in the game to really count. The bench came out and played really well and set the tone for the end of the game.

The 3M's, Matthew Robinson, Michael Kuiper and Michael Cooper, outscored the rest of the team's total numbers in the first three quarters.

Robinson said, "We are struggling right now, and we just need to get back to basics or our season will be be done."

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE
In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, February 23, 2012, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts herein-after set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):
1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.
(3) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.
(4) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.
